Why remote?

The current Covid-19 situation can be used as a catalyst for the implementation of remote learning concepts. The reasons to say goodbye to conventional approaches and welcome new and innovative concepts go beyond the current Covid-19 restrictions:

1. Global projects, remote teams, home office, savings on travel expenses - Virtual and remote work and leadership will continue to be part of our working life's
2. Microsoft Teams, Google Workspace, Mural, Miro, Mentimeter, Padlet - New meeting technologies and applications enable interactive training courses; virtual trainings designed with multisensory elements can be even more effective than f2f trainings
3. Avoiding long travels and flexibly getting together - Virtual trainings allow a close support of the participants and can be realized short notice as well as independently from location. Therefore they deliver a greater proximity to the work environment than conventional trainings.

Why Leading Mindfully?

1. Profound experience as trainers and consultants for online trainings, workshops and coachings from 1:1 meetings to workshops with over 100 participants
2. Experience with being integrated into our customers' IT-tools (Skype, Teams, Google Meetups, Webex, ...) and training software (Zoom, Webex Training, Mural, Padlet, ...)
3. We combine established methods from traditional industries with innovative ideas from the start-up scene and agile companies
4. Proven virtual concepts conducted in several national and multinational corporations, English or German
5. Broad cooperation network of international and experienced trainers to conduct large companywide programs from one source
6. Field experience due to various leadership roles in different industries as well as leading international and virtual project teams

Our Values and Principles

- We are systemic, curious and courageous
- Working remotely and with agile concepts is part of our company culture
- We believe that leadership development begins with working on the personal mindset
- We stand for high practical relevance and connectivity of our trainings and workshops
